23 Resources for Free Photos

Here's a list of online resources and websites where you'll find free stock photos for your social media posts, website, or other marketing channels.

If a picture is worth a thousand words, then having a good stock photo website on hand is crucial for any digital marketer.

That's because stock photos are a great way to:

- Boost engagement
- Liven up a blog or social media post
- Build your business's brand

But marketers should be careful not to infringe on anyone's copyright. Always respect the creative works and rights of others. If not, you risk serious consequences, such as big fines and even having your website taken down.

One great way to avoid this is to use a free stock photo site. Stock photo sites collect images from artists and photographers who have given permission for anyone to use them.

That's why we put together this collection of free stock photo resources and websites that you can use to grow your brand.

23 resources for free stock photos

Every image site in the list below falls under Creative Commons. That means you can use them and don't need to worry about getting sued.

1. Unsplash

Unsplash is a fantastic free stock photo resource that contains more than 850,000 high-resolution images. Each photo is sourced from the website's talented community of photographers and media creators.

2. Gratisography

Gratisography is one of the most interesting of the free stock photo sites due to the quirky style of photographer Ryan McGuire. All of the photos are high-resolution and royalty-free—ready for your use wherever you please. The photos are organised by categories—animals, nature, objects, people, urban, and whimsical.

3. IM Free

IM Free is a “curated collection of free web design resources, all for commercial use.” The royalty-free stock photos are organised by categories such as technology, education, and nature.

4. Pixabay

Pixabay offers nearly half a million free images and videos for both personal and commercial use. All images on the site are royalty-free and covered under Creative Commons Zero (CC0) license, which means they can be modified and used commercially online and in print.

5. Pexels

Pexels is another fantastic website offering hundreds of thousands of free stock photos drawing from a community of photographers and digital creatives. The website also aggregates photos from other websites such as Gratisography, Little Visuals, and Pixabay to get you the most high-quality photos out there.

6. Burst by Shopify

In an effort to combat the issue of diversity and inclusion within media and marketing, Shopify held internal photo shoots to create high quality images of a diverse group of ethnicities and genders in the workplace. That collection is now open and free for personal and commercial use on a new stock photo site called Burst.

7. Picjumbo

With more than 5 million downloads since it launched in 2013, Picjumbo is a popular free resource for social media images. Users can click through the different categories of over 2,000 free high resolution photos.

8. Reshot

Reshot boasts the “largest catalog of high-quality free stock photos that you won’t find anywhere else.” They source their photos from a community of very talented photographers whom they have partnered with to give you the very best image assets for any web needs.

9. Stockvault

Stockvault hosts over 35,000 royalty-free images, graphics, and designs from photographers, designers, and students around the world.

10. Kaboompics

KaboomPics offers free, high-quality images that are available for personal and commercial use. The images you’ll find here are bright, modern, and aesthetically pleasing. And each comes with a helpful colour palette so you can plan your visuals accordingly.

11. RawPixel

RawPixel prides itself on having the most diverse collection of stock photos around.

12. FancyCrave

Instead of tired old stock photos, FancyCrave aims to provide “emotionally driven images that tell a story.” The site specialises in travel photography and has an easy-to-navigate website that releases two new images from professional photographers everyday. When looking for free social media images, the colourful and vibrant nature of FancyCrave’s photos are especially eye-catching, which might make your social posts more engaging and shareable.

13. FoodiesFeed

FoodiesFeed is a fantastic resource for all your food imagery needs.

14. StockSnap

StockSnap is a favourite for a lot of digital and social media marketers—and for good reason. You can search the impressive collection of images by date, what’s trending, number of views or downloads, and keyword.

15. Freestocks

Freestocks is another fantastic resource of free stock photos (as the name suggests).

16. Splitshire

Web designer Daniel Nanescu created Splitshire as a collection of stunning, easy-to-browse images and video. The photos are sorted into helpful categories such as “abstract,” “still life,” and “technology.” Nanescu’s photos, which previously lived “on a hard drive gathering dust,” are now used in books, magazines, and appear on websites like The Huffington Post and CNN.

17. Life of Pix

Life of Pix is a collection of free high resolution stock images donated to the public domain by the Leeroy Advertising Agency in Montreal. With no copyright restrictions, the beautiful photos are free for personal and commercial use.

18. Picography

Picography is another great resource for high-resolution photographs. Its intuitive search interface also makes it incredibly easy for marketers to find what they're looking for.

19. MMT Stock

MMT Stock contains a wealth of high-resolution stock photos for any of your marketing needs. The photos are sourced by photographer Jeffrey Betts who simply wants to share his love of photography with the world. The site is updated each week with brand new, spectacular images.

20. Jay Mantri

Jay Mantri's photographs are nothing short of breathtaking. While beautiful to scroll through in their large form, if you are needing to quickly find an image for your content or social post, we suggest changing to the archive view for an easier browsing experience.

21. ISO Republic

ISO Republic's main mission is "to provide high-quality images to be used by designers, developers, bloggers, marketers and social media teams."

22. New Old Stock

New Old Stock provide the ultimate "Throwback Thursday" content with hundreds of vintage photos from public archives. The photos are fascinating and would be a compelling addition to any social media campaign.

23. Refe (Free)

Free Refe has a collection of images known for their clarity, quality, and diverse subject matter. Although there is an emphasis on photos showing "real life," the images are anything but mundane. As their website states, "using great imagery helps portray emotions, increase sales, and conversions," the free photos here are a must-bookmark resource.
